Rayane AbuSabha is the Executive Director of the Accreditation Council for Education in Nutrition and Dietetics (ACEND). She is also Professor Emerita at The Sage Colleges in Troy, NY where she served as the Department Chair of Nutrition Science and directed several nutrition and dietetics programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Before coming to Sage, Rayane was the Executive Director of the Spinal Cord Injury Board and the Breast Cancer Research Board at the New York State Department of Health. She has over thirty years of research experience and is well published in the area of nutrition education.

Deanna Cheatham recently obtained a Master of Science in Nutrition and Food Systems (Dietetic Practice) from the University of Southern Mississippi where she also achieved a Bachelor of Science in Nutrition and Dietetics in 2017. Throughout her collegiate career and dietetic experiences, she found her passion for clinical nutrition and working with patients to increase their knowledge and understanding of how nutrition impacts their health. Deanna was the recipient of the College of Education and Human Sciences Outstanding Student of 2020 as well as the Ellen L. Walker and Allene Vaden scholarships. She has recently accepted a position as a clinical registered dietitian with Sodexo at a hospital in her hometown of Pensacola, Florida.

Reuben Cheeks is a graduate student at Prairie View A&M University, receiving his Master of Architecture in December 2020. During his time at Prairie View, he was a very curious and outgoing leader. During his senior year, he was the American Institute of Architectural Students chapter president where he was also nominated chapter leader of the month. Reuben helped a great deal in the 2018 accreditation review which helped the program receive its full-length 8-year accreditation. Over the years Reuben challenged himself to be an outstanding architect/designer. During his downtime, he likes to read and draw which shows his many creative abilities. He has traveled to many different places and has been able to gauge the amazing power of design through architecture. Reuben plans to learn more through working and being of service to the built environment, he also plans to own his own firm in the distant future.

Kevin Connell has served as Assistant Director of Accreditation at the Council for the Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP) for the past two years. At CACREP, he is responsible for working with counseling programs at more than 120 institutions, guiding them through the accreditation process. Before entering the accreditation field, Kevin worked for National Geographic where he directed a team responsible for the editorial standards of U.S. and global television programming. He holds a master’s degree in English from the University of Notre Dame and a B.A. in English and Chemistry, summa cum laude, from the University of Delaware.
Christin Cohen is a Procurement Leader who works for Project Management Institute. She knows the risks that third parties can bring to an engagement and, conversely, the value they can add when properly vetting and managed. After spending a couple of decades in Procurement, Christin knows how important successful third-party engagements are to organizations and the initiatives they are trying to launch. She has sourced everything from the digital platforms and software solutions to staff augmentation resources for their implementations. Early and thorough due diligence should never be overlooked and does not have to take long – but is vital to good outcomes. Christin holds a B.S. in Business from Salisbury University and is a Certified Purchasing Manager (C.P.M.) and is a Certified Scrum Master (CSM).

Judith S. Eaton is president emeritus of the Council for Higher Education Accreditation (CHEA), the largest institutional higher education membership organization in the United States. She served as CHEA’s President since shortly after its founding in 1996 through July 2020. Prior to her work at CHEA, Dr. Eaton served as chancellor of the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities, as president of the Council for Aid to Education, the Community College of Philadelphia and the Community College of Southern Nevada and as vice president of the American Council on Education. She has held teaching positions at Columbia University, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University. Dr. Eaton has authored numerous books and articles on higher education and accreditation-related topics.

Inger Hatlen has served as the Accreditation Program Administrator for the PMI Global Accreditation Center for Project Management Education Programs (GAC) since April 2017. In this role, she has acted as the primary coordinator for applicant submissions, providing staff level feedback and support to programs throughout the process. She has participated in process streamlining and policy updates to support the continuous improvement of GAC accreditation. She has worked as the engagement liaison for the volunteer decision and policy-making body for GAC. Prior to GAC, Inger worked as a development and strategic planning consultant to nonprofit performing arts organizations and as an arts administrator for New Paradise Laboratories and Pig Iron Theatre Company. She is on the board of Ninth Planet, a producing company focused on lifting up the voices of women and non-binary artists. She has a B.A. in Theatre Arts from the University of Iowa.

Jesmarie Johnson is the Executive Director of the Planning Accreditation Board (PAB). PAB accredits university programs in North America leading to bachelor’s and master’s degrees in urban planning. She joined PAB in 2010 as the Associate Director and assumed the Executive Director position in 2018. She works collaboratively with an 8-member board and manages a pool of approximately 200 Site Visitors. Previously, Ms. Johnson was employed by the City of Schenectady, NY as the Economic Development Coordinator and Planner. She served on the Board of YWCA of Schenectady (2008 – 2010), the ASPA Fall professional development sub-committee (2013 – 2015) and the ASPA Leadership Taskforce. In 2020, she earned the Certified Association Executive credential. Ms. Johnson has an M.S. in City and Regional Planning from Pratt Institute and a B.A. in Urban Studies and Planning from the University of Albany, SUNY.
Diane Auer Jones is the Principal Deputy Under Secretary for Postsecondary Education at the U.S. Department of Education. Diane has a diverse background in higher education, having spent the first 10 years of her career serving as a biology professor at the Community College of Baltimore County, and later working at Princeton University and Career Education Corporation. Diane also has an extensive background in science and education policy having worked at the National Science Foundation, for the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Science, and for the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy. She served as the Assistant Secretary for Postsecondary Education at the Department of Education during the George W. Bush administration.

Laura Rasar King has served as Executive Director of the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH) since 2004. Her career spans nearly 20 years in public health, most of which has focused on quality assurance in higher education in public health and related professional fields. In her current role, she manages the work of CEPH and supports its Board. She assists universities interested in establishing a public health degree program and pursuing accreditation nationally and internationally. She has held a variety of elected and appointed positions in ASPA including Nominations Committee, Education Policies Committee, and Member of the Board of Directors. She received an MPH in Health Promotion and Disease Prevention from George Washington University School of Public Health and Health Services and BA in Psychology from American University, both in Washington, DC.

Roxanne Kingston is the Dietetic Internship Director at The University of Southern Mississippi. This is her eleventh year to be employed by Southern Miss. She was employed as a Consultant Dietitian for the first four years of her career where she worked in mostly long-term care facilities. Her education was completed at The University of Southern Mississippi where she received her Bachelor’s degree in 2004, completed the Dietetic Internship in 2005 and received her Master’s degree in 2006. She is currently completing her PhD in Research, Evaluation, Statistics, and Assessment (RESA). Roxanne is a member of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics, Nutrition and Dietetic Educators and Preceptors Practice Group, and the Foodservice Systems Management Education Council. At the University, she also serves as a Quality Matters Peer Reviewer and as an Online Teaching Faculty Ambassador.

Craig S. Little is the President and CEO of the Council on Chiropractic Education (CCE). Dr. Little’s professional experience includes prior leadership roles with CCE as its Chair, Executive Committee member, and Councilor. He has a Bachelor of Science in Biology and a Doctor of Chiropractic degree from Southern California University of Health Sciences. After working as a practicing chiropractor he completed a Master’s degree in Educational Leadership from Chapman University and a Doctor of Education degree from Creighton University, with a focus on interdisciplinary leadership, evaluation and assessment in higher education.
Mollie Mulvanity is the Deputy Director of the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH) and currently serves on the ASPA Board of Directors, after three years of service as Chair of ASPA’s Fall Professional Development Committee. Mollie joined CEPH in 2005 and served as an Accreditation Specialist and Director of Accreditation Services before assuming her current role. Mollie has visited more than 100 public health programs while providing consultation or staffing accreditation reviews, including universities throughout the US and in Europe, Asia, and Australia and has managed multiple criteria and procedures revision processes. Mollie has served as a public member on the Commission for Approval of Teams at the American Cleft Palate-Craniofacial Association and as a member of its Standards Revision Taskforce.

Barbara Ostrove, MA, OTR/L, FAOTA is the Assistant Director of Accreditation for the Accreditation Council of Occupational Therapy (ACOTE). Prior to this position she was a practicing occupational therapist and administrator at Butler Hospital in Providence, RI. During her 37 years of practice in mental health settings she presented on a variety of leadership topics to include group leadership, strategic planning, program management and conflict resolution. Ms. Ostrove has been an active member of ACOTE since 2004. She was an accreditation evaluator before she was selected to serve on ACOTE. Ms. Ostrove has completed over 40 site visits, served as a team chair mentor and in her current position, educates programs on ACOTE Standards. She previously presented at ASPA on Site Visitor Evaluation.

Ikhlas Sabouni received a Master and a Doctorate of Architecture from Rice University in Houston, Texas. Dr. Sabouni is Dean and Distinguished Professor at the School of Architecture at Prairie View A&M University (PVAMU). She also served as a Special Assistant to the President at PVAMU for 6 years. She served on several national, regional, and local boards including AIAS, ACSA, TSA, TAF, Texas Sustainability Consortium, HBCU Universal Design, and Tau Sigma Delta (TSD) Honor Society. She also served as Secretary, Vice-Chancellor, and Chancellor of the ACSA College of Distinguished Professors. She is currently serving on the AIAS and TSD Boards and ACSA Education Committee. Dr. Sabouni served on the AIA Equity in Architecture Commission and on several equity and diversity panel discussions. She has also chaired several NAAB visiting teams.

Tom Smalling has served as Chief Executive Officer of the Commission on Accreditation for Respiratory Care (CoARC) since April 2008. Dr. Smalling served as a board member of CoARC for four years prior to serving as their Executive Director. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Cardiorespiratory Sciences and a Master of Science degree in Health Sciences both from Stony Brook University, NY. He earned his PhD in Higher Education Administration from New York University in 2006. He has worked in the respiratory care profession since 1987 and joined the respiratory care program faculty at Stony Brook University in 1995, where he also served as Director of Clinical Education.
Kelly Velasquez is the Associate Director of Accreditation for Research and Quality Management at the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA), where she is responsible for directing activities related to the evaluation of the Council on Academic Accreditation in Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology’s (CAA) accreditation program. In this capacity, she developed, implemented, and currently maintains a comprehensive Accreditation Quality Management System, which includes multi-faceted assessment and data collection mechanisms at all stakeholder levels. In addition, she provides reports on program trends and compiles data on accredited program performance in relation to quality benchmarks for the CAA and the public.

Loretta C. Waldron joined the Accreditation Review Commission on Education for the Physician Assistant (ARC-PA) in December 2013 as the Director of Accreditation Services. She oversees activities that are part of the accreditation cycle, including processing of applications, reports and correspondence from programs; assignment of site visits; maintenance of a program tracking database; and communication with programs. Prior to ARC-PA, Ms. Waldron was Registrar at Mount Vernon College, Compliance Specialist with the Education Licensure Commission of the District of Columbia, and Associate Director for the Council on Podiatric Medical Education. She earned a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Maryland and an MBA from the Roy E. Crummer Graduate School of Business at Rollins College.